Our Community and Our People: embedding our values

Reflections on consumer feedback and insights, as they relate to the NMHS values, are a regular focus for the Board. This month the Board heard stories from King Edward Memorial Hospital about their pastoral care experiences and the actions being taken to inform and improve trauma-informed practices, as well as a testimonial on the excellent and empathic care provided by our staff.

Presentations to the Board

The Board welcomed the Minister for Preventative Health to discuss the State Government's approach to maintaining and improving the health and wellbeing of Western Australians, and reduce demand on our public hospitals over the long term. Topics included multi-sector collaboration to identify and invest in evidence-based priorities for effective disease prevention and wellbeing across the life course; current stakeholder consultations to inform and shape the Government's Preventive Health Strategy; and new approaches to help meet the needs of children, families and the wider community.

In addition, the Board heard from the NMHS Public Health team about the diversity of its services, including those State-wide, as well as innovations to improve health and wellbeing outcomes.

The Board also received an update on the progress of the Graylands Campus Project, which will expand the number of existing forensic mental health beds, and include an eight-bed unit for children and adolescents.
